says Mrs. J. Sondergaard, of Dannebrog, Nebr., in writing her praise for Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Cardui has helped me so much. I used to be bothered with fainting spells and weakness, caused from womanly troubles, but since taking Cardui I feel so much better. It also gave me great relief at another serious time. There is no other medicine to compare with Cardui."

Con. Roach Tells 'Em.

(Jasper County Democrat.)

The readers of the Democrat may be interested in a side-light that is rather out of the ordinary. Some time ago a certain coterie of "standpatters" not being able to criticize anything done in the conduct of the state affairs, conceived the idea of criticising the personnel of the people who are rendering a public service above criticism, and so they started the cry of "nepotism." All kinds of misrepresentations were scattered over the State, the Globe-Democrat leading the van with the false report that the state officers had their wives with the rest of the family on the payroll. Among others that innocently repeated the salacious morsel of political gossip was the Missouri Ruralist, published at Kansas City.

The Secretary of State addressed the following letter to the able editor of that popular periodical:

November 10th, 1915.

Hon. John F. Case,

Editor Missouri Ruralist,
Kansas City, Missouri.

Dear Friend Case—I have just read your last issue of the esteemed "Ruralist." I know you would not do me an intentional harm. I write, therefore, to correct the impression you leave on the minds of your readers when you say:

"Possibly when one has so large a family as the estimable secretary possesses, he may not consider a quartet of daughters—asserted to be the number employed as deputies and clerks (on the State's payroll)—as numerous."

I am blessed with nine daughters and four sons. Conscienceless partisan opponents have spread the report that the whole family, including my wife, are on the State's payroll. I have not denied the rumor because I knew no friend of mine would believe such a report, nor have I thought strangers and political enemies would give credit to charges of such scandalous character. Such charges will react on the accusers.

However, esteeming your friendship, I shall take the time to give you a full report on how my family are employed.

My eldest daughter (Number 1) is earning her living teaching school, as her father and mother both before her did when they first engaged in life's battle.

Number 2 is married and living with her husband at Fort Wayne, Indiana, where he, as an electrical engineer, and with her knowledge of household arts, can make more than they can here.

Number 3 is taking a course in household economics at Columbia, preparing herself for her life work and fitting herself to be the housewife of a Missouri farmer. That makes three of the family not on the payroll of the State.

Number 4 is an employee in the office over which I preside. She is a High School graduate, an accomplished stenographer and typewriter, a good penman, bookkeeper, and copyist, an experienced proof reader and typesetter, has charge of the compilation and printing of official publications such as the road laws, corporation laws and famous Missouri "Blue Book," the excellence of which is so universally known as to need no commendation. She is always at her post of duty, is as valuable an employee to the department as the state has, is so acknowledged by every one of the official investigators, both republican and democrat, and I have absolutely no apology to make to anyone for her employment. She earns her wage, and so long as I live and have my senses, no daughter, or son, of mine shall be proscribed, penalized, or denied privileges common to other citizens for no other reason than that I am their father. I sacrificed no natural, moral or legal right to secure office, and before I make any such sacrifice I'll first "pass up" the office.

Number 5 is a student in the Jefferson City High School from which she will graduate next year. She is not on the payroll, but helps to earn her living by setting type and giving music lessons.

Number 6 is a son, a freshman in High School. He helps to earn his board and clothes by carrying newspaper routes morning and evening, arising at five o'clock A. M. each day without being called. He is not on the payroll of the State.

Number 7 is a girl in the eighth grade of the city school. Her contribution to the family exchequer is as a fancy candy maker. The State is not on her list of patrons.

Number 8 is a son in the fifth school grade and his brother, number 9, is in the third grade. These boys are agents for the "Saturday Evening Post," the "Country Gentleman" and such periodicals. They are not on the State payroll.

Number 10 entered school this year. He has an ambition to be the editor of an agricultural paper—and will be trained to be too suspicious of reports started by political candidates to give them space in his paper.

Number 11 and 12 are twin girls too young to enter school or be entered on the State payroll. All they ask or expect, is fair play for "daddy," whose favorites they are.

Number 13 was a year old the 10th instant. She doesn't expect to get on the State payroll until after her father's term as Governor has expired.

Number 14 is the good wife herself. Sewing on buttons, mending socks, making up beds, helping with the washing and ironing, selecting properly balanced rations, etc., make life sufficiently interesting for her. She is not on the State payroll, but has her opinion of the fables who spread such reports. If she were a man somebody would get hurt.

Now, Brother Case, there is the whole story. I don't believe your hand, or the hand of the public, especially that great body of farmers constituting your readers,—is against industry, efficiency and honesty, though these traits may be found in a State official with a large family—an official so ambitious as to aspire to an office others may try to purchase with filthy lucre and mendacity rather than with honest service.

Yours very truly,

CORNELIUS ROACH.

The editor of the Ruralist of course made correction. Editorially in the next issue, among other things of Secretary Roach, he said:

"Few men in public and private life are more dependable. Probably few persons have given credit to the assertion that the whole family was on the State payroll, but few would question the truth of the assertion that four out of a family of thirteen were. That would be a small per cent compared with other records. No public official can rightly be censured for hiring a relative as competent as Miss Roach has proved herself to be, and no one would expect him to discharge her."

Everybody in Carthage, where most of the Roach children were born, know that every child is taught to work, and they all know what it means to labor for a living. Their father's election to an office with a modest salary did not in the slightest particular change the habits of any member of the family. They are resigned to accept the life of labor to which they have all been elected. The one that works for the State does not feel disgraced because she has to work—no more or less than any of the others. They all work, don't care who knows it, and are not worried about the opinion of those that look down on people because they have to work for a living.

Obituary.

On December 31, 1915, the Angel of Heaven descended and took away our beloved friend, William D. Stricklin, better known as "Uncle Billy." He was born December 30, 1837, near Pilot Knob, Mo. The old brother was 78 years and one day old. He was married September 13, 1860, to Talitha Davis. To this union there were born three children. One son and two daughters; the two daughters and wife still survive him. The son was called away during his infancy.

Brother Stricklin was once a member of the Missionary Baptist Church, and the Church going down he did not transfer his membership to any other church.

The brother said he was prepared to go. Mr. Stricklin has been a citizen of this community for several years. He was buried in the Stricklin Cemetery on his farm. The funeral service was conducted by Arthur Francis.

There is a vacancy in his chair that can not be filled. To the dear old mother who has but a very short time here to stay, may God be with her and give her peace and comfort the rest of her days is my prayer!

A FRIEND.

Edgehill, Mo., January 3, 1916.
